In 1998, Shule Mandela Academy decided to sponsor the First Annual Collard Greens Cultural Festival west of the Mississippi in hopes of ensuring the future of a unique well-rooted tradition worldwide to help support the operations of the academy financially. It is only fitting that Shule, a school that believes African centered education can and will sustain us in the future, honor something that has sustained us in the past.

The festival was originally established for the Shule Mandela Academy capital fund and quality academic programs. Presently, our objective is to raise funds to support the development of cultural immersion programs for elementary, middle and high school students both physically and virtually.

Our latest development has been with our partnership with AYA Educational Institute where we are homeschooling middle age and high school students using their cutting edge technology to teach live and online academic courses that are African centered. AYA Educational Institute.

Quality education has been and continues to be the most challenging issue we face in the 21st century. Eighty-five percent of the students who attended Shule schools have graduated from high school and enrolled in colleges and universities across the nation.

This festival is a celebration of our accomplishments and our continued commitment of African Centered Education and Academic Excellence for the children worldwide.
